A Message from our CEO & Executive Director

Sixty-seven years ago, the Institute for Local Government (ILG) was founded to help cities research municipal issues and publish reports. That was a noble and important mission, but today ILG is so much more.

ILG has a long, proud history of serving local governments and meeting a variety of needs, but for the past few years, ILG has grown and evolved in unique and important ways. Today, we serve more than 2,500 cities, counties and special districts and we work hand-in-hand and on-the-ground with local agency staff and elected or appointed officials to tackle tough problems and find innovative solutions together. We’re proud that ILG is changing and evolving as the needs of local governments adjust.

It’s hard to describe or underestimate the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on California’s communities and local governments. In 2020 and 2021, like so many local agencies, ILG was thrown headfirst into crisis management and response, which still continues today. Even though we’re starting to explore recovery options and life after the pandemic, every day presents an uncertainty that must be managed and overcome.

In March 2020, no one had the real-world expertise about pandemic response, so we pivoted. The ILG team made the transition to an entirely virtual workplace almost overnight. We adjusted our approach and our business model to learn how to stay engaged with each other and the local agencies we served. We converted our in-person trainings and conference sessions to virtual events and webinars. We honed our skillset and expanded our partnerships to include statewide experts in municipal finance, digital engagement, natural disasters and refugee and immigrant education. Over the last two years, ILG has trained over 20,000 local government leaders and staff.

The past 24 months have been a time of challenge, reflection and opportunity. As an organization, ILG has been able to look inward and center our values. We have embraced opportunities to provide conscious counsel to our partner agencies about leadership, ethics, climate, equity, engagement and more. This time of hardship has reinforced our mission and shown us our collective strength, our mettle and our resilience. We have made significant progress as a non-profit and with our partners, but there are many lengths we still have to go.

This bi-annual report provides highlights of the work we’ve done and the impact we’ve made for California’s cities, counties and special districts. It showcases the commitment and leadership of an incredible team of staff, consultants, affiliates and partners. It recognizes the passion and sacrifice of local government leaders who have been true community heroes in this unprecedented time in our history. It celebrates the journey we’ve begun and the steps we still have to take.

Enjoy!

About the Institute for Local Government

ILG is the non-profit training and education affiliate of the League of California Cities, the California State Association of Counties and the California Special Districts Association.

ILG is committed to empowering and educating public servants by delivering real-world expertise that helps them navigate complex issues, increase their capacity and build trust in their communities.

All our work is guided by our core values of collaboration, service, commitment, equity, inclusion and trust. Our resources have centered on our four key pillars to ensure that we could expand our depth of knowledge and help local agencies build the necessary internal capacity to meet the moment. ILG provides cities, counties and special districts with expertise, education and training in the following program areas:

- Leadership and Governance
- Public Engagement
- Sustainable and Resilient Communities
- Workforce and Civics Education
